DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 8/9/2007 has been entered.

Specification

The amendment filed 8/9/2007 is objected to under 35 U.S.C. 132(a) because it introduces new matter into the disclosure. 35 U.S.C. 132(a) states that no amendment shall introduce new matter into the disclosure of the invention. The added material which is not supported by the original disclosure is as follows: There is no original disclosure of an insertion means and the structures that constitute the mechanical equivalent of an insertion means.

Applicant is required to cancel the new matter in the reply to this Office Action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 14-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. There is no original disclosure of an insertion means and the structures that constitute the mechanical equivalent of an insertion means. The examiner is interpreting "insertion means" to be any structure that helps the medical device during insertion into the body. The examiner maintains that any arthroscopic device has an "insertion means".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 14-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bonutti (5,716,325) in view of Banik et al. (5,256,149).

Bonutti teaches a method of using an arthroscopic surgery device consisting of making an arthroscopic penetration, moving a cylindrical sleeve distally relative to a tubular body to expand arms from a first position to a second, deploying an instrument to perform a procedure and returning the arms from the second position to a first position. (See Claim 7) The step of penetration includes either using the device to penetrate the body or inserting the device through an incision. (See Column 1 Line 30 35) Said incision made by a trocar positioned within the device. (See Column 2 Line 45 50) The step of moving further includes applying a force to the proximal end of the device. (See Claim 8)

Bonutti fails to teach or disclose a liquid prevention means to prevent liquid from leaking out of the cannula.

Banik et al. teaches a transparent cannula comprising a flapper valve (100) that creates an air tight seal preventing gas from escaping from the cannula. (See Figure 2 and Column 7 Lines 7-17)

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the disclosed method of Bonutti with the cannula teachings of Banik et al. to provide method of arthroscopic surgery with a cannula with liquid prevention means.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 8/9/2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. In response to the applicant's argument that neither reference teaches or suggests an insertion means, the examiner respectfully disagrees. The examiner is interpreting "insertion means" very broadly because there is no support in the specification for mechanical equivalents of "insertion means". The examiner maintains that all arthroscopic tools have "insertion means".
